Noy to stop Garcia deal

Ex-general's plea bargain to be reviewed

By Herman Bontolero, Alvin Papa and Lito B. Salaverria

PRESIDENT AQUINO has ordered a review of the plea bargain agreement that resulted in a former military comptroller accused of amassing more than P300 million in ill-gotten assets walking out of jail yesterday.

Mr. Aquino yesterday said he was disappointed that retired Maj. Gen. Carlos Garcia managed to get himself supposedly released from prison and his director, Executive Secretary Pardo Ochoa to review the deal that was struck between state prosecutors and Garcia's lawyers.

The Sandiganbayan en banc court that was trying Garcia for the scandalous offense of plunder reportedly approved a plea bargain agreement under which Garcia pleaded guilty to the lesser charges of direct bribery and money laundering.

Though the court has yet to issue a resolution approving the deal, Garcia was allowed to post bail of P60,000 for the lesser charges last Thursday and was ordered released, indicating that the court had accepted the plea bargain.

Under the terms of the deal, Garcia has reportedly agreed to return a still unspecified amount that is part of the P300 million in allegedly stolen assets.

In return, Garcia will no longer face plunder charges for which there is no bail and carries the penalty of life imprisonment.

Mr. Aquino indicated that he was not to stop at

Both sides in Webb case 'equally at fault'

By Nikla Dizon

THE SUPREME COURT may crack the whip on those who would violate the old judicial rule and put the institution in 'shameful' position. Associate Justice Antonio Brion has warned in his supplemental opinion in the infamous case of Robert Webb et al. in connection with the 1981 Visconde massacre. Brion, who voted against the acquittal along with three other justices including Chief Justice Renato Corona, defended the high court from the media campaign of the contending parties in the case prior to the release of its decision on Dec. 14.

He noted how the high court just was "openly and maliciously" in the print and broadcast media through its reported speculations about his intervention in the case.

"There was how bad and how low comments about the case had been," he wrote.

Brion said the high court did not ap-

TELLING THE FILIPINO STORY TO THE WORLD

Editor's Note: For 25 days, we will be telling stories about the legacies that mark the paper's 25th anniversary on Dec. 9, 2010. Some are daily inside stories that impinge on how we cover unfolding events; some are mark-the-day stories that become talk-of-the-town topics; others are spring-point stories that have changed the landscape of history, still others, big or small, were the heart and soul of the story.

But whatever, the legacies will tell you the story.

The real loser, winner in ad boycott

By Juan M. D. Molaco

THE BIGGEST threat to business, according to renowned pay strategist Albert Ellis, stems from the irrational demand of certain people that others must absolutely treat them like this. These people are a danger. Ellis warned, because in extreme cases they regard those who treat them unkindly as rotten individuals who deserve to be stopped.

Think Sept. 13, 2010, when a bunch of students that Ellis may have been referring to rioted and two hijacked planes into the twin towers of the World Trade Center in New York because America would not agree with their fundamentalist dogmas.

Think July-November 1999, when the Philippine Daily Inquirer fired its greatest critic: opinion—an advertising boycott: opinion-

Make Jesus center of decor—bishops

Aquino names ex-GMA official to Cabinet

By Philip C. Salazar

CATHOLIC BISHOPS are concerned that Santa Claus is taking over Christmas from Jesus Christ.

"To keep the Christmas season 'Christ-centered,'" the Catholic Church yesterday urged the faithful to keep the traditional "Yuletide" (the holiday season) as the celebration of Jesus Christ's birth.

"The best reason for Christmas is the birth of Christ," the bishops said. "If you take out the birth from Christmas, then you lose Christmas. Jesus is the center of Christmas," said Most Rev. Quinsac, director of the Catholic Bishops' Conference of the Philippines (CBCP) media office.

He said it was OK to have other Christmas dances like a Christmas tree but these "should be secondary."

"They should put up a nativity. The stars and comets made up of indigenous materials like incense," Quinsac said.

"The focus should be on the birth. The nativity is a centerpiece. You can do it any way you want. Actually, there are people who see their nativity and it is OK," he added.

And to help spread Christmas cheer across the globe—particularly among the millions of overseas Filipinos scattered away from home—the CBCP will put up this week a website so visitors people back home can post letters and video greetings to them.

"We will open next week a Christmas for the Filipinos in the World. We will encourage all Filipinos to post messages of the nativity. Filipinos celebrate abroad," Quinsac said.

Quinsac said the website was intended for Filipinos overseas on limited trips to the world's centers of power "to become leaders wherever they are locally or globally."

"We are still in growing phase not as a nativity but as a fellow Filipinos," the CBCP said.

Quinsac said the CBCP would also be posting nativity pictures online that include Christmas stories for Filipinos working in Muslim countries.

PRESIDENT AQUINO has appointed a member of former President Gloria Macapagal Arroyo's Cabinet as one of his presidential advisors.

Deputy Presidential Spokesperson Miguel Palis yesterday said former Environment Secretary Eliza Orlino was the new presidential assistant for climate change.

"I have not really a focused environmental advisor until after last visit to the Department of Environment and Natural Resources so I think it's a very welcome addition to the President's staff," Palis said.

Palis said Orlino was part of the 2008 administration. Orlino was previously involved with such groups as Partnership for Clean Air, Government Disaster Response Initiative, Earth Day Network in the Philippines and Solid Waste Management Association of the Philippines.

One other appointment that Palis mentioned was that of Rodel Lapid as a law partner at the law firm Aquino, Lapid & Co., a law firm

MERALCO EMPLOYEES SPEND NOCHE BUENA AWAY FROM HOME
JUST TO KEEP THE LIGHTS ON

MAKING SURE CHRISTMAS IS BRIGHT

Christmas comes around only once a year, but for 13 years, Nestor Divina of Meralco was spending noche buena away from home to work the night shift and make sure Manila consumers have uninterrupted electricity—a kind of dedication shared by hundreds of Meralco linemen, supervisors, and call center agents who have to endure loneliness when called to serve on Christmas Eve.

Now the head of Meralco's Alabang Sector, Divina looks back at the last 27 years he has been with Meralco with equal measures of fondness and melancholy as Christmas Eve nears once more. It is an experience this 59-year-old electrical engineer considers a price for working with the country's largest power distributor and an offering of love's gift as well.

"May halagang langkit at karunungan na tumatagpang sa mga Pasko dahil natatagpuan ang mga pangunahing natatagpang mga pagpapahalaga sa buhay ng mga tao," he says.

Divina recalls the difficult moments when he started spending Christmas Eve away from his family in 1981. "Hindi pa tanyag ang pabor na re-nata ako sa bahay pag noche buena at mabilis na ang arang ng arang work night kagayon," he adds.

It took some time for Divina's family to get used to his absence the night before Christmas and many times during New Year's Eve as well. Finally, he explained to his wife that it was part of his job to be on call for any emergency during the holidays.

Like Divina, there are hundreds of Meralco employees who choose to sacrifice to make sure that Christmas will be bright for the 4.8 million Manila consumers in Metro Manila, Cavite, Malabon, and parts of Laguna, Quezon and Batangas.

Some of them like Francisco Puello Sam, Steven Mario Gonzalez and King Carlson de las Alas of Alabang Sector have accepted the fact that their jobs will require them at certain times to spend Christmas and New Year apart from their loved ones.

But notes that while his job is doubted during those days, he also faces challenging moments as a Meralco employee. "Walang dapat mabigay sa pamilya at malingit dapat mabigay ang ibang pamilya samantalang ang pamilya ay naghihirap sa ating pagtatag." he laments.

Aware of the need to be on call, Gonzalez says he's willing to forego being with family once a while for the sake of Meralco customers who rely on people like him to keep the lights on especially during the Christmas season.

De las Alas, on the other hand, finds it difficult to leave his family considering that Christmas and New Year's Eve happen only once a year. But he has come to accept the reality of his job. "Maraming kailangan pa natin magkaragdag ng mga gawain dahil dapat talaga ang ating trabaho at kailangan ang ating serbisyo," he says.

Meralco Senior Vice President and Head of Customer Retail Services & Corporate Marketing and Communications Alfredo S. Pascalis, salutes the company's employees who sacrifice a lot in order to keep power running throughout the Meralco franchise.

"It is our special offering to Meralco's customers during Christmas, and it is our modest way of expressing the spirit of the season which is so much meaning to giving during season," he says.

Those experienced Meralco employees, particularly linemen, are no strangers to sacrifice and hard work. In the aftermath of typhoons Ondoy and Ketsana, for instance, many of them risked life and limb to restore electric power immediately. On their own initiative, some even had to join rescue operations and help their fellow Filipinos in need, even if their own homes were inundated.

Such heroic effort was documented by lineman Charlie Pascaso of Meralco's Rust Sector who left the fate of his family to God and decided to heed the call of duty at the height of Ondoy's onslaught.

Uncertain of the whereabouts of his wife, children and parents, he just prayed hard for their safety. While their belongings were lost to the sudden surge of floodwater, Pascaso was thankful none of his loved ones was hurt. His area started to work sometime since and he and his colleagues could not report because of the typhoon's devastation.

The Christmas, while most Filipino families will be sharing their merry moments at home, there will be hundreds of Meralco employees on duty who will have dinner by themselves while doing the rounds in their area and waiting to respond to any emergency.

Most of them take comfort in the thought that they are able to serve others not only during Christmas. Lineman Ronald Dray of Pasig Sector said it best—"Angkinang kong magpapahalaga sa ating serbisyo at sa pagtatag ng ating mabigay na pagpapahalaga sa ating kahalagahan."

For a safe & merry Christmas

Very few are aware of it, but fires and related accidents are common during the Christmas season, making the holiday celebrations somewhat sad for many. But there are several safety precautions. Please see below to make sure they welcome Christmas and the New Year in peace. For a safe Christmas season, Meralco is encouraging its customers and the public to follow these tips:

- Check Christmas lights for frayed or exposed wires. To know if Christmas light wires can still be used, bend the wire and if the insulation cracks, exposing the conductor inside, immediately discard the lights.
- Buy lights and electrical decorations approved by the Bureau of Product Standards (BPS). These products have an ICC sticker in their packaging.
- Indoor lights and decors belong indoors. For outdoor places like gardens, use lights and decors specifically designed for outdoors.
- Replace busted Christmas light bulbs with new bulbs and not with foil or other metallic objects. Make sure you unplug the Christmas lights first before replacing light bulbs or fuses.
- When purchasing an artificial tree, make sure it is labeled as the relevant, especially when you intend to decorate it with Christmas lights.
- Be wary of your children playing with or around Christmas lights, since this can lead to electrical shocks or electrocution.

To ensure that Christmas lights remain on and Filipinos enjoy their merry moments with their families, Meralco linemen work round-the-clock

Right or day, Christmas or not, employees of Meralco are on call 24/7 monitoring the entire franchise area and ready to respond to any emergency.

CHRISTMAS PRESENTS FROM THE POOR

A different gift-giving activity in Makati

By Yui G. Santos

FOR THE last three years, single mom Teresa, a resident of Makati City, has done what most of us find difficult to do: giving until it hurts.

It was more admirable in that Teresa is not a highly paid executive or a privileged lady of leisure. Every month, she sets aside a portion of her modest salary as a janitor in a Makati-based firm to give to charity during Christmas.

"I really can't afford to make a Christmas, big-time donation, that's why I try to give up a little amount each month until the end of the year," said Teresa, a 41-year-old mother of three.

Teresa donates her savings in "Agapado" or "Akin-Don" (agapado means gift-giving activity of their church, San Isidro Labrador Parish), that benefits needy poor parishioners of Barangays Kungahong and Pita del Dios.

"This is my way of thanking God for all blessings He gave me and my children during the year," she said humbly. "I am very grateful for these days, but you know what they say: When something good happens to you, you give thanks to God for it."

Although donations from well-off businessmen outside of the communities are very much welcome, the majority of the project's donors, including Teresa, are the parishioners themselves. "We involve our parishioners, many of whom belong to the middle- and lower-income bracket, in activities and make them conscious of the blessings given to them," said Fr. Benito Diaz, of San Isidro Labrador Parish.

"We always give emphasis on the fact that we are all everybody's God's creation, that everything comes from Him. And this is a beautiful occasion for us to show our gratitude to Him by sharing what we have with others," he said.

He noted that the program, which donors can be considered practically hard-up as well, are very generous—and humble.

"They give whatever they can afford. That's actually the beauty of it. This means that one doesn't have to be rich to be able to give," he said, adding that many given gifts to sustain themselves.

But not all donations come in the form of money or goods that are usually offered during the Mass, he added.

Some give their time, like the

A new home for the new year for displaced families

By Kristine Pelaez Mangunary

MABA LIBERTY AGRI center located at the industrial locale in Westville, Westmore City, had been his home for almost 13 years as the troubled low-income man very rarely left his home in 2009.

There was no house to speak of when he got there.

For the last three years, several families that made up his family living in low-cost dormitory-style units in the same area had been evicted. He was not evicted until he was evicted last year. He had to leave his home and he had to go to the street. He had to go to the street. He had to go to the street.

"I just everything at the height of the crisis," he said, recalling the feeling of grief and loss she shared with her 10-year-old son. She had to leave her home and she had to go to the street. She had to go to the street. She had to go to the street.

But a year later, things have changed for the Agri center. The family of the 10-year-old son has been moved into a housing unit. The family of the 10-year-old son has been moved into a housing unit. The family of the 10-year-old son has been moved into a housing unit.

"The development of the area is a problem government officials will have to face," General Edgardo Aguirre said in an interview with the business.

Subsistence is a difficult matter of the city government. In October, Vice President Aguirre said the city government is a "construction in development" and promising efficient delivery of housing services, programs and projects.

In the aftermath of the typhoon, the city government, General Edgardo and the private sector signed a memorandum of agreement that will see an initial three phases of a total of 10 medium-rise housing units in 14 houses built on a 1.9-hectare property originally intended for government use.

Coffee, a planner and beacons of change

By Yvonne B. Hidalgo

A CUP OF COFFEE and a planner. These are the two reasons why people go gaga over coffee shops during the holidays.

Soon, coffee shops offer a number of special blends for coffee drinkers to keep them warm when the weather gets slightly cold outside. Two, they also offer a variety of pastries that are made several days in advance to ensure a steady supply of coffee high and a few baked goods.

Robert Young, entrepreneur and owner of UCC Coffee concept shops in the Philippines, decided to add a different twist to the "coffee scene" which was named by coffee guru John H. Brown in 1995.

The UCC Urban Logbook aims to deliver to loyal UCC customers a blend of motivational and practical information to keep on top of people's minds ways to bring about positive change throughout the year.

BAGUIO CITY—A mad rush to buy poinsettias is under way in Baguio City, the capital of Benguet province, as the city prepares for the Christmas season. The poinsettia, a popular holiday plant, is being sold in large quantities at the Baguio City Poinsettia Festival, which is held annually in the city's main park, Baguio City Park.

According to the festival organizers, the poinsettia is a symbol of good luck and prosperity.

The festival is held in Baguio City Park, which is a large park in the heart of the city. The park is home to many other plants and flowers, but the poinsettia is the star of the show. The festival is held from November 11 to November 18, 2012. The festival is open to the public and is free of charge. The festival is a great way to spend the day and enjoy the beautiful flowers.

Trading wiz heads GSIS

By Dale C. Durbin

A S.A. investor, Robert Vergara would spend hours learning how to read the stock market charts and doubling in financial forecasting while his peers were probably out performing or having lost under the sun.

The now general manager of the state-owned pension fund, Government Service Insurance System is one of those people with a natural affinity to trading. But leaving the intricacies of the capital markets as such an early age has paid off.

Not surprisingly, this interest in the financial markets brought him financial-oriented executives to an existing global career.

And he has gone a full circle after spending most of his professional life overseas. Vergara has dreams to come back to the country to serve as chief of the GSIS.

ROBERT Vergara of GSIS greets officers of General Association of the Period of Pension Fund.

Putting a Bow on 2010: A Proper Perspective

IT'S THE night, the promise you put on 2010 will not depend on what you do but on what you do not do. You look back on the year past, you likely experienced highs and lows, moments of triumph and defeat, and you likely did not know how to wrap up 2010. It's not your attitude toward the last twelve months is providing you with the healthy perspective needed to finish right.

There are three suggestions to help you create a mindset that makes the most of 2010. First, be the winner in every situation.

Things are not just for the people who make the best of the John Maxwell, author of the past year, don't be ashamed by the mistakes you made. Failures are stepping stones to success, and proof of maturity if you're not something from time to time. But, chances are you're not going anywhere worthwhile. Follow me, but first, but first there are three business opportunities to learn and grow as individuals in every walk of life. Instead of dwelling on the disappointments of things going wrong, when the leaders of the organization. By doing so, you'll emerge as a stronger person.

If you can learn to focus on what you have, you will change what the universe is doing. Don't you will have more. If you concentrate on what you don't have, you will never have enough.

In addition to writing down what you're thankful for, take action to show gratitude to the people who have helped you over the course of the past year. Expressing thankfulness to others encourages them, strengthens your relationship with them, and positions you to receive their goodwill again in the future.

It's time to put the past and take joy in today. Hoping to get a glimpse into history, an incentive asked an 87-year-old woman, "What was the worst day like in your life?" "Thank you," she responded, "This is my day!" I love her attitude. Instead of being worried about the years behind her, she simply takes today as the best day of her life.

The close of the calendar year can be a time of reflection. We look back on the happenings of 2010 and assess where we are in life. Although life can only be understood looking backward, it can only be lived moving for

Steak man's daughter turns to desserts

By Thomas L. Remington

IT HAS been the life-long dream of Christina Santiago-Rivera to put up her own "patisserie," with her passion for whipping up all sorts of desserts and pastries going way back to 14.

Now a senior student at the California Culinary Academy in San Francisco is home for staff, believing that being able to do something she would really want and love to do.

Understandably, her dream of having her own patisserie had to take a backseat. After finishing her studies in the US and after two months of working for her relatives, she went back to the Philippines to help her operations and pastry department of the family business—Molina's restaurant, long known for its meals and comfort food.

"When it comes to desserts, there's a way that parents, it's something that I've always wanted to do. But since the family is in the restaurant business, it was not practical to go directly into desserts," Rivera explains.

Instead, Rivera decided to channel her passion for sweet treats through the dessert collection of Molina's.

"I would prepare desserts for our guests in the kitchen and the people who would try my desserts would say that I should open my own store," she admits.

However, being the perfectionist that she was, she knew it was not the perfect time then to put up such a store.

"I didn't want to rush things, and something the owner of the store I got married at my cousin, I knew it was not practical to open my own store right now," she admits.

In while waiting for that perfect moment, she continued to hone her craft by experimenting on her desserts with her family's help and advice.

"My dad was my biggest influence and I know that I take up from him, especially when it comes to taste," she adds.

Feedback

And as with the feedback she got from dad, armed with her passion for baking, desserts, and with a strong will to create something with quality, creativity and taste, Rivera decided to create something that could give her competitors a run for their money.

By word of mouth however, Rivera soon made a name for herself, receiving positive feedback from friends, guests and food critics, even a number of mentions from local magazines, and from the Philippine Press. In 2009, she then started putting food bars and creating online content through her own blog.

In 2009, she then started putting food bars and creating online content through her own blog.

"It was only in 2008 when I started to create something new and local. It was also the time when my aunt was ready to take over the family business," Rivera says.

'I really believe it's just fate plus a lot of hard work and determination'

After waiting to have her own store, Rivera then said it as it was that it was already the perfect time to pursue her dream of putting up her own patisserie—the one that she named "Cristina's Bakery," taking after her daughter's name.

"I always wanted to have something to call my own, something that I myself owned. The clear vision also came that I wanted to put up my own store."

So waiting to wait help from her aunt, Rivera found the difficult task of putting up her own store, as it involved a lot of hard work, from the small attention to the cooking of ingredients, not to mention the large amount that came with the project.

"But she did not stop her. She just kept on creating desserts was just one thing that she did more than her aunt of just delivering desserts and letting fate, she finally decided to put up the first Cristina's Bakery patisserie at Bungeo Circle, Fort Bonifacio.

"The most fun part, I was waiting for a place where I can have my own store. So when I saw this place in Bungeo Circle, I knew that this was the perfect place for my dream bakery," she says.

As fate would have it, Rivera was able to open her own patisserie last week, of course with a little help from the family, especially from her daughter from whom the name of the store was also inspired.

"I really believe it's just fate plus a lot of hard work and determination to provide people with world-class desserts," she adds.

With the opening of the Cristina's Bakery

CRISTINA Santiago-Rivera is the daughter of the owner of Molina's restaurant. She is now a senior student at the California Culinary Academy in San Francisco.

Patisserie, Rivera has been able to open a "new door" for the dessert-loving market.

"I would love to provide people with world-class, delicious desserts that are not only high quality but also delicious that would make an incredible treat for everyone," Rivera says.

The prime of Mommy D

Abandoned by two husbands, she hawked 'kakanin' to raise her six kids. Now she's wearing a P300,000 Rolex and fighting off suitors. Still, Manny Pacquiao's mother insists she hasn't changed—Ako, mag-alba?

By Constantine C. Tugano

DAMONDES SHUTTERED in her hand, as she relaxed it, on that night two years ago in a social gathering, when she was passionately clinging a love song.

A disclaimer in the audience was shouting, "I love you!" She ignored him and went on belting, but the man wouldn't stop, and he got so close around her shoulders, and she pushed him away.

"Do you really love me?" she said. "How much do you love me?"

"I love you very much," he replied.

"How long is your love?" she demanded. "Is it as big as this hat?" And she pointed him to the hat, following it with an upper cut. And that was how the writing of her song unfolded from the tempo, and diamonds flew in the air.

The man fell down the floor, and she stomped on him and wouldn't stop until people pulled him away. "That's you know me! Don't you know who I am?" she said, smiling. "I am the mother of Manny Pacquiao!"

The crowd roared and clapped, asked for forgiveness, and disappeared. He has two more sons and a daughter in the music scene.

By Karen R. Villago
 Contributor

COME THIS year of the Metal Ox, not only will crisp money bear the signature of the just-retired President, the Bangko Sentral ng Pilipinas will be releasing suitably redesigned peso bills.

The need to improve state-of-the-art security features to our money has long been felt to guard against counterfeiting. Two years ago, to avert the problem, the BSP Monetary Board created a multidisciplinary committee which included board member Oton Guico.

Gina Lopez shares great gift-giving ideas

THE HOLIDAY season is the time to share love and joy with those who matter most. Whether you're looking for a special gift for a friend, a loved one, or a business client, there are many ways to make your gift-giving truly memorable.

One of the best ways to make a gift truly special is to personalize it. This can be as simple as adding a handwritten note or a custom label to a bottle of perfume.

Another great idea is to create a gift basket filled with your favorite scents. You can include a variety of perfumes, lotions, and candles, all in your signature scent.

For those who are looking for a more practical gift, a high-quality perfume bottle is always a safe choice. A beautiful bottle can hold a special scent for years to come.

'Is Tita Tessa a real person?'

"Is Tita Tessa a real person?" was the question Rita Fernandez's cousin, the 10-year-old daughter, asked her one day. Children do say the dumbest things!

All know me from family gatherings, on TV and in magazines, but I guess she was wondering how much of the Tita Tessa writing inside me was for a little Christmas Party awarded last week.

My daughter Anna and Rhona had helped me write.

Malungai Oil's health benefits

By Mark D. Salazar

Malunggay (Moringa oleifera) has been transformed into different types of products because of its many health benefits. Several studies have attested how much malunggay offers nutrients at single portions compared with other fruits and vegetables. Because of this, many enterprising individuals have devised into creating products from food to oil to beauty products.

Researching and studies about the world reveal that malunggay contains several health benefits. C. Iron, magnesium and other vitamins, said Dr. Matthew Salazar. "It has far more iron than any other vegetable source than tomatoes. This is not to say though to ditch fruits and vegetables in your diet," warned Dr. Salazar.

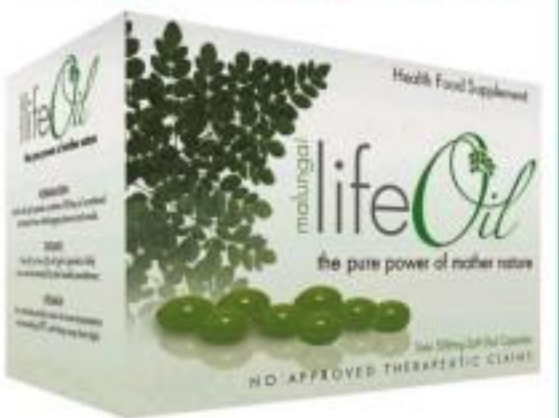

The Philippine Food and Nutrition Research Institute Department of Science and Technology (PNR-DOST) did their own study in the many health benefits of malunggay. Malunggay, according to PNR-DOST can be used as food, feed, medicine, dye or water purifier, hedge, fertilizer, pesticide, soap, and seed and even bio-fuels.

All parts of the tree are edible in the Philippines, the leaves are used for soups, especially for feeding mothers because it is believed the malunggay can help increase the supply of breast milk. The leaves can also be dried and crushed into powder to become a food additive. This may be helpful to women who are nursing their babies. Malunggay seeds have the property when eaten, they and their seeds are called seeds. The thick, and moist seeds can be a substitute for honey. The DOH study has:

effect. It is used to treat rheumatism, nervousness, and stomach disorders. Dr. Salazar, a nutritionist and health advocate, said that there have been endorsement testimonies of the benefits of malunggay. Scientific studies have been conducted to prove these claims. The WHO has been conducting research in the country to promote the regular consumption of malunggay. The government body is concerned of the increasing incidence of diseases by Filipinos which leads to low income levels in the body.

Finally—Harry Winston in Manila

By David H. Lee

Manila, awarded the Harry Winston retail store in ground floor, showcasing high jewelry and watch collections. The store will also offer custom-making services, according to Harry Winston's Manila representative.

It was 1945 when Harry Winston married the actress, Jennifer Jones, who that year's Academy Award actress trophy wearing the American jewelry designer. That milestone would contribute to the company's reputation as a contemporary Hollywood star. The Harry Winston jewelry and high jewelry store would also go on to win three Academy Awards, placing it in Harry Winston's class.

"King of Diamonds" is another Harry Winston collection.

Every collector of jewelry, from Madonna to Jennifer Lawrence, to Robert De Niro, has worn a Harry Winston ring. In the mid-1980s, having on its list of jewelry-making, the company expanded its range as it shifted into watchmaking, some of which would go on to win awards in the competitive watchmaking industry. Two of the vintage collections, vintage and classic, are featured in the opening of the store.

"The Antique and Classic collections reflect two of our most iconic and popular jewelry styles for men and women," says Harry Winston CEO and president Frédéric de Saup.

"The Antique collection is very much inspired by the glamour and energy of New York City, home to Harry Winston's cultural and creative headquarters. These are men's watches and jewelry, with strong, rectangular shapes, adorned with Harry Winston's iconic wristwatch, including the wristwatch of Winston's flagship collection on PCH Avenue in New York. The full collection played off the ideas of geometry and perspective, creating a range of styles that appeal to a variety of client preferences. One of the most iconic pieces in the full Harry Winston collection is the bold, Art Deco inspired 'The Very Different' watch, which is sold.

Fine watch making

Meanwhile, the Classic collection provides the ideal setting to showcase fine watch-making craftsmanship, whether a chronograph, just timepiece, dress watch, or watch. It offers an impressive range of sophisticated mechanisms. The entire piece of the watch is covered in gold, while the watch is made in the style of the fine watch is covered in the finest gold and diamonds. True to Winston's style, each watch captures a modern balance of sports elegance.

While it doesn't have the century-old heritage of some of the most famous watch-making brands, Harry Winston has proved itself as a fine watch-making company in a few years of the most exciting timepiece market in the world.

For a long time, it has been clear that Harry Winston has created some of the most iconic watch designs that have shaped the world of the industry, including the iconic winning Olympic series, the iconic Taylor Swift and the Prince of Wales, which is made of the Harry Winston's iconic style called Rolex.

In creating complex and intricate, says the shop, "Harry Winston has been able to create, yet humble enough, to collaborate with the most innovative independent watchmakers. I think the company's success in this area has allowed Harry Winston to not only distinguish itself in the market, but also allowed the brand to more successfully establish itself as a leading international watch collection of the world."

In only 28 years, it is clear that some of the brand's iconic watches of designers and their designs have quickly become collectors' items. In 2007, the company also opened its own watch-making factory in Geneva, where it produces its own, custom-made and high-end, but also, under the brand's tradition of its fine jewelry business.

Two collections

The Harry Winston store may not always be a celebrity, but one that's a true consumer, says De Saup.

"When clients come to Harry Winston, it is to celebrate the most meaningful moments in their lives—wedding, including both of a child, professional achievement—and therefore have an expectation for meaningful pieces, as well."

The brand has already announced a high-end and highly exclusive distribution, says the shop, should be their clients receive the products in the best environments.

"For many years, Harry Winston has had a well-proven track record in the region, aligning with some of the strongest partners to distribute our fine jewelry and high-complication watches. With this new opening, we have found an ideal venue (partnering with de Saup) to further show, use our collection of fine jewelry and fine watches, and look forward to increasing our existing clients, as well as opening our doors to new clients."

The dream AmSa home is here taking shape, a glimpse of which could be seen from the plane when you fly over it.

Live an AmSa, spending an endless holiday is not just a possibility, but a sweet dose of reality.

'endless holiday' lifestyle

By Kenneth M. del Rosario

Imagining spending hours in a place where spending endless holidays is not just a possibility, but a sweet dose of reality.

It's like having a home perfect for any weekend getaway or long vacation. With an eco-touristic pace of lifestyle, knowledge-balancing work and personal time, one can use a little more than a sprinkling of relaxation at the end of the day.

Because people today have put more importance on their valuable time, it's important now more than ever to have something new inside within reach, without sacrificing style and comfort. A home incorporated into a self-sufficient community is a must.

This picturesque scenario of life is exactly what Robinsons Land Corporation had in mind three years ago when it launched AmSa - the company's first true planned leisure resort community in Mactan, Cebu.

That's because in AmSa, the birds come of the nest is enough to take the day's stress away, inspired by the beautiful architecture and environment of Gold Coast, Australia.

AmSa replicates one of the naturally breathtaking backdrop that surrounds the property's three major architectural elements - the condominium towers, the hotel, and the entertainment center.

AmSa is part of the ever-expanding reach of Robinsons Land Corporation, one of the most profitable businesses of JG Summit Holdings Inc. Cebu's place and today, and its lucrative status as tourist, lounge and a modern Manila commercial activities were cited in selecting the venue for Robinsons Land Corporation's first major project. Moreover, JG Summit Holdings Inc. moves its focus to Cebu, as founder John Gokongwad Jr. began his post-war trading business in this hometown.

AmSa stands on a prime six-hectare property with a 200-meter beachfront in Punta Engaña district in Mactan. It is named after the founder's wish for an abode of enjoyment, leisure or pleasure, what Robinsons Land Corporation actually envisioned the development to be. The project is aptly branded under Robinsons Land's, the premium property brand of the Robinsons Land Corporation Residential Division.

This dream home is here taking shape - a glimpse of which could be seen from an airplane when you fly over it.

Indeed, history of value in Tower A of the AmSa Private Residences, the residential component of the development, has started, allowing the unit owners to celebrate their first Christmas in their new home. The residents now have access to the clubhouse, gym, and pool that have been completed together with Tower A.

Soon, unit owners will be enjoying the other amenities that include a basketball court, mini theater, game room, hiking and jogging trail, multipurpose court, beach volleyball and Funtastic area, all of which are in the picnic area, a playground, gym, and recreation center.

As if that wasn't yet enough to put the Christmas cheer on, unit owners would be pleased to know that magnificent views await them every single day - with units having balconies that mirror those of a mansion in a view of the mountains.

It's the gift of a holiday lifestyle - a fitting reward to the successful individuals that AmSa-Accia only serves.

With the positive response that Robinsons Land Corporation has received from the launch of Tower A, they have followed it up by offering the 18-story Tower B, the construction of which is on going and the topping off ceremony of which has recently been marked, and the 10-story Tower C, which is currently in the pre-selling stage.

The launch of the three towers means more options for each unit's view, delivery schedule, and payment terms as one selects the perfect AmSa investment for his vacation lifestyle.

Through it all, Robinsons Land Corporation remains enthusiastic towards the project, just as AmSa continues to be well received by the city residents and Robinsons Land's clients from Manila, Visayas and Mindanao.

Truly when you're living in such a perfect place as this, who wouldn't want a never-ending holiday?

The new Our Home store introduced merchandise in a European manner to give shoppers a more intense shopping experience.

OUR HOME'S NEW LOOK AT SM SOUTHMALL

For many years, Our Home has been known for its Great Designs, at Great Prices. And with the recent opening of its new store at SM Southmall, it continues to draw customers with an exciting new concept. The 1,000 square meter store has a Euro and minimalist feel with a very subtle approach to flexibility. Things can be changed with ease, making the store easy to merchandise. More than just the look, it also offers European style furniture that can compete with the pricier counterparts available in the country.

Celebrity Interior Designer Tessa Pardo-Rodriguez guided the customer and shared with Our Home General Manager Barry Yap how she was inspired with the store's transformation. "From the new logo to the interior to its layout, look and style furniture and accessories, and in the way the items are presented. The new Our Home store is more sophisticated and upscale, and designed by luxury shopping. All merchandise selections are made in the context of lifestyle as opposed to mass merchandise, giving shoppers a more intimate shopping experience.

Much of the merchandise is European inspired, reflecting Our Home's taste and style authority. The center parts showcase furniture and accessories as flexible vignettes, while the perimeter areas holds the smaller and old stock items like the mattresses and carpets.

Designed by Pure Design, the new Our Home store has a neutral background of grays, whites, and light woods. Colors, however, continue to be experienced through brightly colored signs panels and wall graphics. The ceiling feels very minimalist and elegant, hiding most of the structural light-and-heat to open to focus the merchandise grouping.

From wealth to war

Impoverished towns and ruins in San Fernando include old structures with the bones of the infamous Davao War

PHOTOGRAPHY

In a small, remote, mountainous town, San Fernando is the only place where you can see the ruins of a once-thriving city. The town is now a ghost town, with only a few buildings left standing. The ruins are a testament to the Davao War, a conflict that lasted from 1966 to 1976.

My father is into 'text-phalandering'

IT'S A COMMONPLACE observation that the more you know about a person, the more you like them. But what if you know too much?

For me, the answer is yes. I know too much about my father, and it's driving me crazy.

It's not that I know too much about his life, but that I know too much about his mind.

My father is a brilliant man, a true genius. But he's also a bit of a phalander.

He's always been a bit of a phalander, but lately he's taken it to a whole new level.

He's started "text-phalandering" me. He's sending me all sorts of weird and wonderful messages.

Some are just silly, like "I love you" or "You're beautiful." But others are a bit more... suggestive.

John Vesely is to Secondhand Serenade what Trent Reznor is to Nine Inch Nails

By David W. De Jesus
Staff Writer

SECONDHAND Serenade has a new album out, titled "Dear the Show" (Warner Music). For those who haven't heard, this production of singer-songwriter John Vesely is best described as the "Tall for Short" and "New Calt."

These are the tunes one usually heard on the radio in the mid 1990s, the new wave while sitting at work. Why do I like this production?

Probably it's the songs' satirical, sarcastic sound and the fun, but really lyrical nature of the songs that could keep people alert even when they're tired. But are these tunes really satirical or actually ones that the youth love to sing nowadays?

Over the phone the producer clarified things with Vesely who has expanded the group with other members. Many would surely raise a head of protest for the comparison. Vesely is to sit with Trent Reznor as a Nine Inch Nails.

Your songs speak of longing, regret, devotion, failed relationships. They would suit the post or blues music. Ever thought of doing these styles?

Well the influence is there because my father was a professional jazz musician. Growing up, I remember in seventh grade, I played jazz with my dad. I played the saxophone and the bass guitar. It was my father who showed me that it's possible to follow your dreams.

Reznor, Vesely, Scott Slom, James, and others in your group are making music. How do you feel about this?

What kind of jazz did your father play? John Coltrane or Miles Davis and Eric?

Miles of the Coltrane and Miles Davis said. He has lots of stories about this.

Now about these musicians?

So to speak, but I do appreciate their passion in music. They're completely honest in what they do.

You managed to break into the commercial music scene via the indie route. Was it difficult?

It's not that difficult. Nowadays it's easy to connect with the audience even if you're just starting out your own. The technology is there. With my first album, "Reznor," I put out songs in Secondhand Serenade's Myspace account and got instant... even got word No. 1 indie status of the month. There were letters to play it here in the USA. I was a manager and a record label. I did it my way. I was a band player for various bands for eight years before I hit the jackpot.

How does it feel growing up in Manila? Is there something about the place that's comfortable for creative people, like you, James Eslava and others, well, you.

Laughs! It's a relatively quiet indie city. Manila has an ideal place to grow up. But it's the San Francisco for those that believe in it as a musician. There are so many good clubs where musicians can play and develop their skills in jazz, blues, heavy metal, rock, punk, grunge, acoustic. They're all there.

How is "Dear the Show" different from the first two albums?

Very different. It's more about connecting with my life. The first album, "Reznor," had songs about meeting his lady who became his wife for three years. The follow-up, "I Told My Story," was about how they differed apart as a couple and eventually divorced.

His album played in Manila recently. Was he heard as influential, and when are you coming here?

His album is a commercial band. I'll started to be a bit of it myself when I was starting. It's more like an acoustic band. And that's what I really wanted to do back then. Hopefully this January we can add the Philippines in our tour because we have shows in Indonesia.

Were looking forward to that. Any serious musicians you want to collaborate or share the stage with in the future?

Wow, I think playing with Goldplay would be a dream collaboration. And U2 also. Who knows what will happen? I'm sure. In the following days, all I want to do is come up with more albums.

Fashion show

Former fashioning Philipino Liza Manalang, who's now an award-winning TV producer based in LA, graciously hosted a fashion show by Filipino-American designer David Tague and Jerry Galan at her home.

Let's go, to be and drops in as the event the right to represent the Philippines in the Miss International pageant in 1960, versus that time beauty queen in one of the pin-down of the experience program, "Glamorous Glam." The event, Arlene Manalang Tague, who is the biggest Miss USA, was one of the models who walked on a ramp built over the pool.

Arlene had Liza, in a very close, pointed to us a glass by David that she personally had. She stood out in the Hollywood set as a beauty. Fil-Am Oliver Coney, a Hollywood talent manager (also known as a cousin of the director).

David's son, Arlene Manalang, who is now with her father with husband and Liza, would's come because she would be with well for her parents, since that Manalang and Linda Tague Ruffalo, grand daughter.

It was gathering that showed the holiday celebration of Arlene (who is known as Liza Tague), David's cousin jewelry line, and Arlene and David's collaboration between him under the label Brian.

Oh, one may see, we met Arlene Manalang, who's called Arlene Golden Globe and Grammy nominations for an award song like "Up in the Air" from "The Bodyguard" and "You're the One" from "Dear John." Arlene proudly said that to come to work, "The Truth is," in Charles L. album.
